March 2012

Hello Friends!

How is your 2012 going so far? Is it exciting, transformational, peaceful, joyful, blissful, at times or, is it intense and stressful?

Mine's all of the above. It's been quite the ride with some huge changes – And we are only 10 weeks in!

What I have found for myself and others I'm working with right now, is that the energy demands us to take the time to 'connect' with our selves. To let go of all that doesn't serve us and allow our plan to be revealed. If we don't, we are all over the place, unfocused, sick, ungrounded and disconnected.

Everyone on the planet has a plan – our soul agreement. It includes our life's purpose and our main lessons. Our purpose is our deep passion and our lessons support our purpose. What we learn guides us and gives us gifts of spiritual growth and awareness.

It is in those moments of learning that I find the most difficult. I know what I should be doing to get connected but my ego is pulling me in the opposite direction.

2012 is a magnificent year of transformation. I will be doing all I can to let go of trying to control it and simply allow my plan to be revealed to me. I can only do this through being connected.

I invite you to get connected this year. Check out my events, which may help you. If you are ready to tap into this immense energy and for your own magnificent transformation then consider my new Bright Shiny Soul Program. I guide you to reconnect to your soul, intuition and team of angels and guides, to heal and to reveal the true you and to shine brightly, even through your challenges.
